Bullfrog

Bronze, 10 x 10 x 7

As you pause on your jog through the woods on a cool autumn morning, sun rays slipping through the changing leaves, there is a realization that you are no longer alone. Squatting to pick up one of nature's little natives, you cuddle him in your hands. There is no fear, no trepidation coming from the small forest dweller as you both study each other intently. A bond is formed that must be preserved, so that even when the two of you go your separate ways, you will remember a quiet day, long past.
